- More than 250 participants
- Including farmer representatives and members of various institutions :
 - Livestock and Veterinary services, laboratories, Parks and Wildlife services, Universities, FAO, EU, IBAR, French Embassy, USAID, OIE, IP, NGO, etc.

Outlining operational GRIPAVI results

- Cooperation between veterinarians, laboratories, ecologists, doctors and farmers was strengthened
- Staff from veterinary, parks and wildlife services more sensitized to the importance of the wild/domestic/human interface
- Scientific and technical training highly appreciated
- Avenues for more targeted surveillance strategies
- Some successful surveillance network for NCD and AI are model to be extended to new areas and diseases
- Reinforcement of laboratory equipment and support
- Swine influenza is a new problem to be considered (e.g: Vietnam)

New questions arised

- How to improve vaccination efficiency and case reporting ?
- What happens for virus circulation when farmer sell sick animals?
- Are local avian race more resistant to virus ?
- Extrapolation of our results to other areas ?
- Usefulness of wild bird surveillance ? If yes how to improve it ?
- More investigation on NCD circulating genotypes

Etc.

RECOMMENDATIONS

- What about a GRIPAVI 2 ?
or any project for financial and technical support
 - E.g : Training and support
 - for data collection and analysis
 - capacity building for adoption of modern and future technologies of detection
- To improve surveillance capacity, including farmers or legislation tools
- More attention to poultry production by national authorities
 - eg : NCD is too neglected
 - Need for observatory of poultry production and commodity chain,
